Dig in at the post level to figure out which types of content you should add to your plan for each social channel.

Knowing which types
of content performs
well on each channel
will be key to understanding what
you should be doing
more of – and less of.

Think Slide carefully about your goals
and your buyer personas.

Start with your goals.
What do you hope to get out of your social media efforts?

Who are your buyer personas?
How are they using social media?

Do research on how your competitors are using social media?

By looking at your competition, you can get a sense of how you stack up and where you might have gaps to close in your own strategy.

Consider your resources.

Think about the size of your team.

Always be testing
your content.

Developing social media content

A woman with dark hair in a bun, wearing a green shirt, is sitting at a desk in a bright, modern office. She has her hand over her face, suggesting she is overwhelmed or stressed. In the background, there are bookshelves, a desk with a laptop, and a window looking out onto a city. A semi-transparent dark blue banner is overlaid on the bottom half of the image, containing white text.
