HUD Posts RAD Case Study

HUD has posted a new case study document spotlighting an early adopter of the Rental Assistance Demonstration (RAD) that converted its entire public housing portfolio to project-based Section 8 subsidies in Winder, Georgia. Through its RAD transformation, the PHA was able to increase its cash flow and create the funding to establish a collaborative base of operations for several major nonprofit and government agency community programs. The new center serves as a hub that helps deliver education, food security, child enrichment, job training, and other services to approximately 8,000 people annually and up to 150 children daily.
