What is GDPR?

The General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR) went into effect May 25, 2018. This regulation is focused on the way data must be handled and processed in the European Union. EU Citizens now have many rights under GDPR, including (but not limited to):

- Use or collection of personal information must be fully consented by the individual, and this must be done with a positive, unambiguous opt-in
- Individuals will be able to request information on the data a company holds on them
- Individuals can request to be forgotten or removed from all systems
- The Individual can object to the use of their data in specific ways
- All data breaches must be announced within 72 hours

Who Does it Affect?

GDPR does not only affect businesses in the European Union. If you do business with EU businesses', EU residents', or any EU citizens' data, even if you do not have a physical location in the EU, you must comply with the GDPR. The Repercussions of non-compliance will be costly, with fines of up to the greater of €20 Million or 4% of corporate annual revenue for companies that do not comply. Additionally, compliance is not a one-time exercise. There are intricacies involved with becoming compliant and then maintaining compliance.

How Can the iGrafX GDPR Suite Help?

Effective application of GDPR needs a Process-Centric business model to bring together all 3 key stakeholders: Legal, IT Architecture and Process Owners. Legal needs to understand the risk exposure within the operations of a company. IT needs to identify "subject data," and where it is processed within the businesses operations. Process Owners need to identify the Controllers and Processors of subject data and then implement the necessary controls to stay in compliance.

Without a Process-Centric Business Model at the heart, you might identify all the data and still not have complete control over all potential personal data breaches. This equals risk.

Key elements of GDPR include having records of Processing Activities (Article 30) which a Business Transformation Platform, centered on a Process Repository is designed to achieve. Looking at GDPR from the process perspective also allows for Process-Centric GDPR surveys to identify key risk areas, and then GDPR Process Templates to accelerate documentation. After achieving compliance, this same Process-Centric business model will now help you remain compliant into the future.

iGrafX GDPR Suite:

It's all about data protection. The regulation mandates a "Risk Based Approach" where appropriate organizational controls must be developed according to the degree of risk associated with data processing activities. A company like iGrafX provides the intellectual property of knowing the regulatory elements of GDPR, the means to assess risk from the process perspective, and the system to document, model and audit controls in perpetuity.

Highlights:

- A solution for all GDPR Stakeholders: Legal, IT and Process
- Legislation-specific reference content
- GDPR Survey tools to assess risk areas
- Process Templates to expedite documentation and automation
- Complete visibility and control via Data Flow Modeling
- Not a "one and done" solution
