Experts in Vaccine Litigation

Vaccines are generally safe. However, rare injuries caused by vaccinations do happen. The National Vaccine Injury Compensation Program (“VICP”) is a federal program that compensates the victims of vaccine injuries. It is different from a personal injury or medical malpractice case. The claim is filed against the Department of Health and Human Services to seek compensation from a multi-billion dollar trust fund. We do not sue your doctor, nurse, or other healthcare professional. The program is intended to be a streamlined compensation system which benefits those who have been injured by vaccines. We retain leading medical experts to prove that your injury was caused by a vaccination.

If you have suffered an adverse reaction, illness or injury after the flu shot or other vaccine, you may be entitled to compensation. My Vaccine Lawyer has represented thousands of clients who have been injured by vaccines since 2012. Call us to learn more about the VICP, our vaccine injury claim payouts, meeting our staff, or general questions about a vaccine injury. Our services come at no cost to you.

Frequently Asked Questions

What is the Vaccine Injury Compensation Program?

This federal program compensates individuals injured by a vaccine that's covered in the VICP. The program doesn't hold the vaccine manufacturer or administrator accountable.

If I get compensated, will I owe you a percentage of my settlement?

No, our clients keep every penny of their compensation. In vaccine injury claims, the Vaccine Injury Trust Fund pays your attorney fees. So unlike in civil lawsuits, you don't need to pay us a percentage of your settlement.

How long do I have to file a vaccine injury claim?

You must file a vaccine injury claim within three (3) years of your first symptom or onset of vaccine injury.

Who funds the Vaccine Injury Compensation Program?

If your vaccine injury case is successful, your settlement comes from the Vaccine Injury Trust Fund. This trust fund is supported by a tax on vaccine manufacturers.

Will I have to go to vaccine court to receive compensation?

The vast majority of vaccine cases are settled before trial. But there's always a chance you may need to participate in a hearing if your case does not settle.
