

About Dan March

Dan is a facilitator, consultant and actor. He has a huge bank of acting experience across TV, radio and advertising. In addition he has ten years of live comedy experience as a stand-up doing live and recorded shows. He draws on his improvisation background to help others think on their feet, manage themselves with confidence and communicate with impact.

With a reputation for warmth and challenge, Dan works with all levels of seniority and across a wide variety of sectors. The link for him is the human one: everyone is scared of failing and some are scared of success. Dan helps his participants to learn relevant tools and techniques that deal with the practical and emotional aspects of leadership.

After reading Modern Languages at Oxford University, Dan trained as an actor at drama school in London. He worked in business development roles before he decided to focus on leadership development and acting as this is where he knows his skills and passion lie.

Examples of Dan's work

- Facilitated several specialist communication skills development workshops focussed on building executive presence for a leading US-based business school
- Designed and delivered leadership skills development modules using role play as part of a multi-level leadership development program for a leading German financial institution
- Delivered leadership skills development for a leading international school's Executive MBA program; topics included personal impact and presentation skills
- Consulted, designed and delivered a communications skills program structured around stand-up comedy for a blue-chip multinational pharmaceutical company

What our clients say about Dan

"An excellent communicator who presented concepts in a fun way." Executive MBA student, international US-based business school

"Dan was engaging, gave personal feedback, and helped to pick areas for improvement." Executive MBA student, international UK-based business school