

About Sarah Brammeier

Sarah is a global executive coach and facilitator grounded in principles and practice of conflict resolution and transactional analysis. She is known for her focus, challenge and relentless energy. In her work, she creates space for reflection and practice so that participants create ways to lead more effectively. Sarah does this by co-creating unique solutions with clients — wherever they work, whatever they face. She ensures that learning groups develop ways to learn and challenge each other for use long after she completes her time with them. Sarah regularly designs, leads & delivers leadership programs throughout the world.

Sarah enjoys being able to collaborate with leaders who are changing the world of work through research, entrepreneurship and innovation. Her corporate experience includes an international food and wellbeing company, executive education at world-class business schools in Europe, the United States and China, Gulf-based energy and financial organizations, and global strategic software consultancies.

Her credentials include an MA in International Peace Studies and an LLM in International Criminal Law. Additionally, she has qualifications in Organizational Development and Educational Transactional Analysis. Sarah is an ILM qualified executive coach.

In her spare time, you will find Sarah using her experience to provide pro bono coaching support to UK-based social entrepreneurs. Sarah thrives working with executives in high change environments in the Middle East & Europe. A British-American national, she lives in Oxford, UK.

Examples of Sarah's work

- Designed and delivered a leadership program for a global software consultancy with a focus on deepening consulting relationships and leadership style
- Facilitated a series of senior team off-sites with a focus on conflict management while delivering in an ambiguous, uncertain global market
- Advised and supported organizational development professionals on leadership, coaching and talent management strategies
- Led a team of consultants in the design and delivery of a strategic leadership program for executives in the MENA region of a prominent gas and oil company
- Coached senior leaders within a healthcare organization as part of an organizational effectiveness initiative

Accreditations

- Belbin Team roles
- Science of Happiness at Work™
- Transactional Analysis specialist

What our clients say about Sarah

"iOpener has transformed our participants displaying conspicuous excellence which sets them apart from others. Overall, it has been a wonderful experience working with iOpener. iOpener has indeed inspired and impacted our participants to be the best, and has exceeded our expectations." Technical Coordinator Operations, state owned petroleum company UAE

“Sarah was great! Her kind, warm, and constructive demeanour made this journey smooth and insightful.”
HRG Legal Team