Fund Performance

- P.A.C. Capital Balanced Fund returned 1.21%, outperforming the Morningstar Benchmark by 1.00%. As Global share markets ended what will go down as an unforgettable year on a largely positive note. In the US, the S&P 500 and Dow Jones Indices finished the year at record highs.
- Many of the uncertainties that have been weighing down investor sentiment were tempered over the month. Congress managed to agree on another round of stimulus measures, protests around the US Elections began to taper and the UK finally divorced itself from the European Union. Ballooning covid-19 infection rates in Europe and the US were largely shrugged off as positive vaccine news flow overshadowed rising casing numbers.

What Worked

Beta Shares Global Cyber Security ETF (HACK) returned 11.36% (nominal) across the month. The fund provides exposure to the top global companies in the fast-growing Cybersecurity sector. Cyber security stocks rallied in December after 'Solarwinds' – a large US Cybersecurity company was hacked, impacting a large number of US companies and government agencies. This was the latest in a score of incidents underlining the tailwinds behind the sector.

What Didn't

Our exposure to Chinese companies through Vaneck Vectors China New Economy ETF (CNEW) was the worst performer across the month, down 3.91%. CNEW gives exposure to the most fundamentally sound companies making up Chinas new economy. Namely, healthcare, technology, consumer discretionary and consumer staples.
