Overview

Typically performance management is done on spreadsheets, with critical information scattered throughout multiple business areas. This leaves managers unable to identify emerging risks that could blind side the strategic plans of the organization.

LogicManager enables organizations to specify and record measurements to track the effectiveness of any activity, control or process, and finally formalize the connection between risks, operational activities, and balanced scorecard objectives.

Benefit of LogicManager

Connect risks to mitigation activities, metrics, and business initiatives to detect increased threat levels and identify emerging risks before business metrics fall out of tolerance.
